CCIM Institute's core curriculum emphasizes practical application and represents the essential knowledge expected of commercial real estate professionals. In CI 102, students learn how to apply CCIM's Strategic Analysis Model to test market, location/site, political/legal, and financial feasibility for a proposed development or existing property acquisition. This strategic analysis process is taught using case study formats featuring residential, retail, industrial, and office property types.

Join CCIM instructors and classmates for face-to-face education and networking in our traditional four-day classroom format with online exams.
